Principal's Message

We are proud to announce our VCE results for 2016, as the overall results reflect the excellent work and commitment shown by staff and students.

We celebrate each student's results, knowing that they all had their own journey to travel. We particularly acknowledge those students who faced personal issues as they persevered with the support of our staff, and achieved their very best. These are the stories we cannot publish, but we are very proud of these students. The success for them was in the completion of their year, and the gaining of their VCE, and we are thrilled that they achieved this goal. I am very thankful to those in our school community for the help they gave to those who required special support, so that they could gain this significant milestone.

Of course we are also extremely proud of the 12.8% who scored an ATAR above 90, and the 34.6% who received an ATAR above 80. Of note this year is that 48% scored in the top third of the State. Our median study score, which includes Year 11 students undertaking advanced studies, was again at 30 and the percentage of those who received a study score of 40 plus was 8.58, which is almost two points above the previous year and our highest in five years.

We also rightly celebrate the success of our top achievers. Our dux is Lauren Adams with an ATAR of 99.2, closely followed by her twin sister, Emily Adams, who received 98.3. Others scoring in the 90s were John Budileanu, Lily Christopher, Jessie Van Hamond, Emma Volard, Daniel Dewhirst, Duncan Hunt, Caitlin McAskill and Michael Coghlan.

It is significant that all of our students at Newhaven College gained their VCE certificate, and it is right that each student should be congratulated. While the academic statistical summary of the Class of 2016 is impressive, success and impact are measured rightly through a much wider lens. The Class of 2016 achieved these excellent results whilst at the same time being fully involved in the life of the school, in their community and in charity events throughout the year. We are certainly very proud of our Class of 2016.

Gea Lovell - Principal
