UNIVERSITY - EARLY ENTRY PROGRAMS

Did you know that at some universities, you can apply for programs that enable you to receive a course offer before your final Year 12 results are released?

These are called 'early entry' programs and they provide a way for universities to take into consideration factors other than just your ATAR for admission into courses.

Some universities take into consideration your Year 11 results for university entry. This is very important to know for students starting Year 11, finishing Year 11, or advancing into Year 11 subjects.

Students with a successful early entry application may receive a 'conditional' or 'unconditional offer'.

Conditional offer

Means that you will need to meet additional criteria to receive an offer such as a minimum ATAR and/or achieve subject and study score prerequisites.

Unconditional offer

Means as long as you complete Year 12 and achieve the course prerequisites, you will receive an offer (the ATAR will not be taken into consideration).

Example

Harry works very hard during Year 11 in 2023 and achieves strong grades. He applies for the Bachelor of Physiotherapy at Charles Sturt University via the Charles Sturt Advantage program in April 2024 (during Year 12).

The University is impressed with his Year 11 grades as well as his Advantage application and makes him a course offer in June.

Harry just has to complete and pass Year 12. He does this and then starts the Bachelor of Physiotherapy in Semester 1, 2025.

UNIVERSITY VERSUS APPRENTICESHIPS

RILEY PAYNE'S STORY

University or apprenticeship? Degree or trade qualification? Both take roughly the same time to complete and are completely different styles of learning. If you enjoy hands on learning, gaining an income whilst gaining a qualification, and don't want to sit in a classroom each day, you could consider an apprenticeship.

Not only will you be debt free after 3 – 4 years, you will have a nationally recognised qualification, be able to work in your trade area anywhere in Australia and in most cases, be able to go straight into full time paid employment in your industry.

Meet Riley Payne. He completed the VCE with a strong ATAR. He had planned to go to university to study engineering, but when he really analysed his passions and learning style, he decided to pursue an apprenticeship.

“Originally, I was considering going to university to study Aerospace Engineering, as I am passionate about aviation and design. There are a few reasons why I opted to head down the trade pathway even after being accepted into my university course.

Learning Style

I am a practical person and I love hands on learning, building construction etc. University would provide me with a great theoretical side to what I wanted to know, but it greatly lacked my preferred hands-on learning style.

Time

The university course that I was considering is a four-year course as most engineering courses are. Generally, apprenticeships have a similar duration of four years, however the accelerated apprenticeship initiative works on competency-based progression. This means that if you can complete your TAFE and if your employer deems you competent then you can theoretically accelerate through the apprenticeship much quicker than the standard four years. As I had a lot of practical experience growing up, I thought this could be very beneficial.

Money

Although apprentice wages may be low initially, they quickly increase as your skills and apprenticeship status change. The possibility of earning money outside of work through your skills may also be an option for some apprentices. When comparing to a university course where you are paying to learn or acquiring a HECS debt, getting paid to learn even if it is a low rate is much more appealing.

Completing a trade gives you many more financial options and the possibility to invest if you are disciplined. Qualified tradespeople also have the opportunity to make quite reasonable yearly salaries in many instances.

Skilled workers shortage

With an ageing workforce, skilled workers will be in high demand in the coming years. With more students than ever opting to head to university instead of taking on a trade it means that job availability should be good for the foreseeable future. This gives me some sense of security in knowing that I should be able to fall back on my trade if I have to.

Getting to where I wanted to be

As I mentioned at the start I am interested in aviation and design as well as many other mechanical subjects. University would have provided me with a set syllabus and strict requirements which would be fantastic for the specific jobs that it is designed for, however I wanted a more personalised pathway that would allow me to learn what I was truly interested in.

The fact that each year of university consists of roughly three months holidays may be enticing to some, but it seemed pointless to me and showed that the course could be completed in a far more condensed time frame.

Basically, I decided that anything I couldn't learn through my apprenticeship I would be able to find the resources to self-teach meaning I was learning exactly what I wanted to.”

AUSTRALIAN APPRENTICESHIPS WEBSITE

This website contains fantastic resources for young people interested in pursuing a professional trade or traineeship. Some of the resources include:

- How to find and contact local apprenticeship specialists in your area
- Information on financial incentives
- Apprenticeship preparation checklist
- Information on how to find and apply for an apprenticeship or traineeship.

To explore the website, go to www.apprenticeships.gov.au

PREPARE FOR AN APPRENTICESHIP

What to do while you are still at school

Work Experience

You can complete up to 40 days of work experience per year once you turn 15.

Be resourceful

Speak to your career adviser, parents, teachers, family friends, people in industry, everyone! Get their advice, use their knowledge and make up your own mind.

Vocational Major

Consider studying the Victorian Certificate of Education (Vocational Major) and/or one or two VET subjects

Subjects

Find out what subjects you will need for your future trade i.e., Mathematics, Physics, Science.

SBAT

Consider starting a School Based Apprenticeship or Traineeship (SBAT) in an area of interest- this will cut the time it will take to complete your qualification once you leave school.

Talk to past students

Talk to past students of your school who are working in occupations you are interested in.

They will give you a picture of what working in the industry is like, how they got into their course or secured their apprenticeship/traineeship and will be able to give you great advice.
